Deputies Arrest Indianapolis Bank Robber

Shawn Hodges

Sheriff's Deputies have arrested a Memphis man for robbing a bank in Indianapolis last year. Detectives with the Indianapolis, Indiana Metropolitan Police Department contacted Shelby County detectives after receiving a tip that the bank robber might be residing in Shelby County.

Detectives in the Sheriff's General Investigation and Street Crimes Bureaus developed information and worked jointly to take Shawn Hodges into custody last weekend.

Indianapolis detectives say Hodges, 30, robbed a Chase Bank in the north-eastern section of the city on March 1, 2008. Detectives say Hodges was armed with a gun and robbed the teller of cash. Investigators say Hodges did not wear a mask and apparently acted alone during the robbery.

Shawn Hodges remains at the Shelby County Jail. He will soon be returned to Indianapolis to face the bank robbery charge.
